Ours is such a "long and sad tale" that we have a whole section of this book devoted to us.

As we slid through the hole (registration line) two years ago, we discovered that this sort of life was "rather curious you know." After one year, we assumed the attitude for the Freshmen's benefit that we were "older than you and must know better."

As we played on the team or cheered from the side lines we secretly thought, "How brave they'll think us at home."

But now we must leave the looking glass behind and begin our adventures in the Wonderland, called by some the world. Nor can we take with us the King, the Queen, the Duchess, the Walrus, the Carpenter—Oh, fiddlesticks, we mean the Dean, Registrar, Faculty, and ever present Freshmen. Not even Twiddle-de-winks or Twiddle-de-we—Oh gracious, we're almost absent-minded (we have heard college causes that)—as we were saying we shall miss Joan, the registers, the steps to convocation, the Griffon News, Penny Whistles, the play, and even all the clubs, museum included.

Our journey through Junior College has not been a dream to us, nor are we forced to leave the rabbit and the mouse, our friends, with our caps and gowns.

Whether as giants or pygmies we attempt to get under or through the door, the spell of the Griffons will transform us.

THE JUNIOR COLLEGE SONG CONTEST

In the early part of this school year, the Senate had a Junior College song contest in which anyone in the College was allowed to submit the words and music for an official college song. The song on page 24 was selected as the official school song and the one on this page as the official pep song.

We wish to thank the writers for giving us these songs that carry with them lingering memories of old J. C.

"The time has come," the Senate said,
"To talk of many things,
Of yells and caps and bulletins
Of schedules and 'sings.'
And whether we have grades enough
And how school spirit swings."

And so with majestic deliberation and a mighty sense of the sublimity of our task—we strive to lead men's—(mostly Freshmen's)—ways aright.

What haven't the Cocktails accomplished in two years? Who dares to say there is anything this organization has not accomplished? Maybe this is only the Cocktails' second year as an organization, but with Chief Lake at the head—the Cocktails rank with the Griffon Staff and the Senate in organizations at J. C.

Who are the Cocktails? What! haven't you heard? They are the peppiest, grittiest collegians that J. C. ever saw—the boys and girls, men and women who back the basketball games, and keep the team going on and on to victory. They are the lads and lassies who chose the plucky cheer leaders, Venable and Murray; the ones who sold season tickets to basketball games and kept the halls plastered with snappy posters. J. C. has had her Peppers and her Jay Cee Janes—but it takes the Cocktails, with their vim and vigor, to enhance that over which the Griffons stand guard.

Would you like to be one of the "chic" of J. C.? Then join Le Cercle Francais. At the Y. W. or at the homes of its members, twice each month the elite of the school gather to converse "en francais". They have been so impressed with the dire results that attended the man who would not pronounce "monsieur" correctly that they take no chances. They have interesting programs and play fascinating French games including "Parley". They sing, too. To hear them sing Le Marseillaise makes one feel he is in France on the 14th of July. If at some time you see a group of gesticulating J. C.'ites interested only in the outpouring of a stream of soft mellow phrases, just write it down that these are "les membres du Cercle Francais, n'est-ce pas!"

"Pardonnez-moi, j'oublie que vous ne comprenez pas français."

The lure of Spain—romance, charming senioritas in scarlet dresses, gay Don Juans, guitars softly tinkling under balcony windows—ever draws adventurers into the Spanish Club. But woe to him who knows little Spanish—to him there are some embarrassing moments when he knows nothing of what is going on, for never a word of English is spoken at the meetings of La Lucecita. Here every member must be able to pack (in Spanish) his trunk which he will take with him to Spain. Often the contents vary from "una camisa para su esposo" (a shirt for her husband) to "un esposo para mi camisa" (a husband for my shirt).

There are orchestras and orchestras all over the land, but the J. C. Orchestra is different. What we lack in crowd we gain and surpass in talent. Although we have not yet been entreated to replace Walter Damrosch and the Damroschians on the General Electric hour, we can boast that we—with all our instruments—have been inside a broadcasting station. Our masterpiece upon which we devote our time and attention is the William Tell Overture. Hour after hour, day after day, week after week, we toil through it—but never yet have we discovered the exact place or time in the overture when William shot the apple off his son's head. What with supplying the dignified march for each convocation, the interesting intermission of our school play, and a convocation program to which Bach and even George Gershwin would have been satisfied auditors—we feel we have been dutiful to our school. To future J. C. orchestras we extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy—for you must uphold the high standard we have set.

Do you want help in putting across some enterprise? Call in the J. C. Y. W. This organization of young women can sell anything and everything—Eskimo pies when it's forty below—second-hand books (sometimes third-hand) for more than the original price. Not only in salesmanship do they excel—but in interior decorating (it was this organization that transformed the girls' study room into a comfortable homey place to study and rest), in providing poor families with Christmas and Thanksgiving dinners, in sponsoring Grade School Girl Reserves, and in bringing to girls of Junior College a feeling of companionship and good-will. Through their efforts, Feriha Fehmy from Beirut, Turkey, came to Junior College to inspire the girls of the Y. W. and the student body.

What we lack in quantity we make up in quality—Miss Bennett said so. Never before have we known what great demands are made of Glee Clubs. We sing in churches and in many interesting club meetings. We meet every Tuesday and every Thursday—those present talk about those absent—and then we sing! Our greatest aspiration is to sing before the president, or at least before Will Rogers, but as our year draws to a close, we find our hopes are not likely to be gratified. As we are Junior College's first real Girls' Glee Club, we feel we have done much more for college interests by staying home and contributing to convocation programs than we could have done by traveling (?) to Washington to sing to President Hoover.

"A broad-minded attitude toward international relations."

International Relations are more and more taking the place of merely national relations. Yet, why not, when everyone is anxiously awaiting the dawn of world peace? The concern of the members of the J. C. International Relations Club for better world co-operation can be learned from attendance at their meetings which are held every three weeks at the home of Miss Wells. The chief purpose of this club is to develop knowledge and good will in international affairs. One of the members has undertaken to make the flag of every nation. Biographies of leading world characters—Elihu Root, Ramsey MacDonald, Charles Evans Hughes, Madame Curie, Dame Rachel Crowdy, Doctor Nansen, John Bassett Moore and Aristide Briand have been reviewed. "The Victory of Peace" was presented in Convocation March 25.

JUNIOR COLLEGE, ST. JOSEPH, MO.

J. C. PROWL

The J. C. Prowl, successor to Sneak Day, was held in the early part of May. The affair was held at Lake Contrary, and many amusements were provided. A track meet was held to finish the intramural season. This track meet established the intramural winner of the season. There was a great deal of class rivalry between the Freshman and Sophomore baseball teams and their enthusiastic rooters. The beach was open and the concessions of the park were open to fill in the program for those who had individual ideas about how the holiday should be spent. The Student Senate sold tickets at a nominal fee for lunches which were distributed at the lake.

This was the first time that Junior College had had anything resembling the field day usually held in the spring by colleges and universities. The attendance was large and the co-operation of the students was excellent. The Senate has expressed the hope that the interest and attraction of the Prowl will grow from year to year and become one of the friendliest affairs on the college calendar.

ARTISTS FROM M. U. PRESENT PROGRAM

Marshall F. Bryant, baritone: Rogers Whitmore, violinist, and Ellsworth A. Mac-Leod, pianist, professors at the school of fine arts, Missouri University, were presented in a recital at the Robidoux High School Auditrium, Wednesday evening, April 9, by the college, under the direction of Miss Bennett, instructor of music. Junior College students were admitted free. The program was as follows:

REAL REVELATIONS OF A STAFF MEETING

One day our editor said: "If I'da Parrott to repeat everything after me, maybe some of you reporters would get your assignments Reital the time. I just can't Barrett We'ls ince Harold James and Elizabeth Thomas are main editors on the other papers. Now don't you Ly-dick. You know you haven't got that article about the Pit." "Luck is a funny thing," the little reporter murmured as he drew forth the Article. "If I hadn't fallen En-debrook, Milton Grawe wouldn't have pulled me out and told me all his experiences on the stock market in France-how Forney Nold Bradford made a million of Merrick preferred and how he saw MacRob Ertz while those Irishmen, O'Rourke and Gibbons, stood by without saying a word.

"Why that would make a good feature," exclaimed Lois Gilbert,

"It's better sport, though," asserted Norman Coder,

"Well, we'll leave that for Ida to decide," said Miss Robinson as the meeting broke up.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Throughout the Griffon, references have been made to the "Spectator." Please note that all who have been listed as members of the "Spectator" 1930 staff, are now members of the staff of the "Griffon News."

PAPER HAS NEW NAME; "SPECTATOR" CHANGED TO "GRIFFON NEWS"

February 19, 1930, the student body voted to change the name of the school paper from "The Spectator" to the "Griffon News."

The paper staff made the first movement toward the change, because they decided the paper was not sufficiently progressive. Since it is hard to make a thing interesting that cannot help look uninteresting, the staff decided a new name, typical of Junior College would be one of the first thirgs needed for improvement. Also, they decided that, if this name were placed nearer the top of the page, leaving less margin, the paper would look less bare. Accordingly, the stu-dents were asked to submit names. The best were picked out and given back to the school - at - large for general vote. "Griffon News" was chosen.

The first issue was out one week after the choice of the new name, and certainly the paper looked charged, and it was changed. When the new name was adopted, the staff attempted to give the sheet a new personality, not a passive spectator's view of the school, but an actively functining unit of the school that reflected the college in a collegiate way,

ON THINKING WE THINK

Aren't we foo!ish to think, When so much brain matter Is required to be successful?—

(My dears, we haven't any brains,

We just think we have.)
Then, to think that we think Griffon News worth even a glance,

When, in reality, we hear That the darn paper is atrocious.

Well, after all, we're just the staff.

Could anything much be exexpected from us?

BIGGER AND BETTER CHILDREN'S MUSEUM!

J. C. Natural Science Club—one immediately thinks of big things—lectures, educational and entertaining-Baumgardt, Lew Sarrett, "Phog" Allen-banquets, outings, and -CHILDREN'S MUSEUM. "How many tickets have you sold?" is typical of the attitude of the Club. If tickets for lectures do not sell, do they give up? Not the J. C. Natural Science Club! Their motto is "Keep on keeping on"-a slogan that we all might follow. If Junior College and the Children's Museum do not go down in history -well, it will be no fault of the Science Club. Keep an eye on these "plant and bug boys and girls"-who knows what they will undertake next?

We, the Griffon assistants, feel that we merit some reward in the publication of this—the 1930 Griffon. (Provided, of course, that it merits reward at all.) Maybe our efforts have not been fully appreciated, still we have reason to know that we have not labored in vain. We can think of no better way to "show off" what we have done, than to print this little note of appreciation we received from the staff:

Dear Griffon Assistants:

You have worked mighty hard to help us and we appreciate you. Had it not been for your diligence and co-operation, our Griffon would doubtless have been published in 1940 instead of 1930.

The best we can wish you is that the Staff of 1931 may have assistants as capable as we have had.

"The Mace" is an honorary organization, the members of which are chosen for their outstanding work for the school in some line of activity.

This is the first year that the Mace has been in the Griffon. It is true that this year there has not been a great deal of activity produced by the Mace as an organization, but that is hardly to be expected when the members of the club are selected by Article III, Section 13, of the Mace constitution: "Insofar as is humanly possible, the members shall represent the six (or fewer) students who have served Junior College, not only in the most ways, but who have succeeded the best in what they have attempted." In that we have given ourselves freely in service to others, we hope that we have lived up to the ideals of our school.

Griffon Staff

We, the members of the Griffon Staff, wish to thank all those who have helped build this Griffon. To the students, faculty, advisors, assistants, advertisers, printers, engravers, patrons, and hosts of others, chief credit for any measure of success which the Griffon might attain, is due. We acknowledge our debt. We are most grateful for everything they have done.

This year's staff has spent freely of time, energy, and money in carrying out a theme; in adding greatly to the art work; in putting in the school songs; in adding Penny Whistles and The Mace to the organization section; in using snapshots more fully to illustrate the intramurals and comic sections. In behalf of next year's staff, we would like to know if the student body approves these changes, or wishes to offer any suggestions for the '31 Griffon, and would appreciate it if the student body would state their approval, disapproval, or suggestions to Miss Wells who has so ably assisted us in this work.

It really came to a head, although it had been simmering in some of our minds for over a year, when former J. C. students began sending us their college literary magazines. We read them, discussed them, and usually ended up by saying, "Yes, very good, very good indeed, but we have people right here in J. C. who could do just as well." And then some ambitious one would always chime in with "I can't see any reason why J. C. can't put out a literary magazine." We couldn't see any reason why, either, so when the Cheshire Cheese Club and the Spectator staff agreed to back us and the administration agreed to finance the venture (an important matter, a most important matter was that financing), why, we had our magazine.

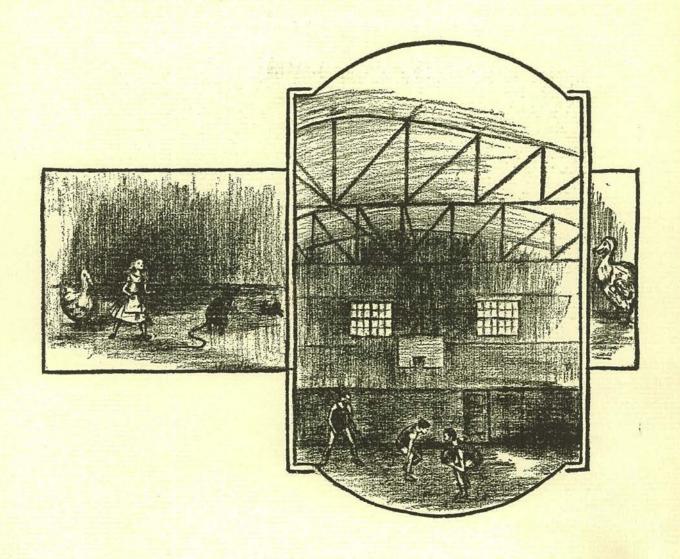

In the first place, there was the name. . . The staff sweated over it, the faculty talked and got nowhere, and the administration became so worked up about it that the records of cuts and negative hours were almost neglected. Almost, I said.

But finally a dark horse entered from the rich crumbs left by Robert Louis Stevenson (pardon the mixed metaphor), and we called it "Penny Whistles," a title which Stevenson once considered and then, fortunately for us, rejected for his "Child's Garden of Verses." That name suits us, for though we cannot play on aeolian harps, we can "blow a penny whistle."

Basketball

Coach R. V. Blomfield

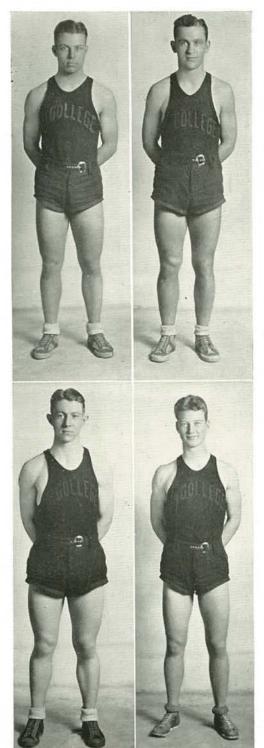

This is Coach Blomfield's first year with Junior College. He is a graduate of Maryville State Teachers' College, and brings to us some of their fighting spirit and determination to win. With so many lettermen coming back next year, we are sure that he will turn out a prize-winning quintet.

Speaking of manager, who can beat Tommy? For the biggest part of the season, Tommy engineered the squad, but along toward the last when the squad needed more players, Tommy handed over the manager's job and filled the vacancy.

Our cheer leaders, Venable and Murray, withdrew from school at the beginning of the second semester but they gladly consented to come back to the games to lead the cheers for the remainder of the season. We appreciate their loyal spirit and wish to thank them for their willing co-operation.

Basketball Summary

The first call for basketball practice brought out two reserves from last year's team and a number of Freshmen aspirants. There wasn't a letter man to help the new coach, R. V. Blomfield, form a winning quintet. After practicing a few weeks, things began to look better, the frosh cagers gained the respect of the Sophomore reserves. As the season went on, the win side of the record sheet showed the Freshmen to be successful in winning games and when the final whistle blew the Griffons had won nine of their games and dropped only six.

CAPTAIN WAYNE FURSE HOLLIE BIGGERSTAFF

The Conception College team was the first to fall beneath the scoring onslaught of the Griffons, the score of the game being 43 to 30. Captain Furse tallied frequently for Junior College. Lincoln and Lee, a four-year school from Kansas City, came to the Griffons' den and was defeated 24 to 20. Hadley tossed in five field gcals to make certain our win over the visitors. A group of giants representing Kirksville downed the Griffons in the next tilt. The teachers led throughout the game, but the Junior College basketeers made things interesting with frequent rallies and excellent defensive work. Bowman led the Griffon scorers with four field gcals and one free throw but still the Kirksville quintet won.

P. L. BOWERSOX DONALD BOWMAN

The team journeyed to Kansas City for a game with the Lincoln and Lee squad that we had defeated earlier in the season, but the dentists took the game, 26 to 14. The Griffons went to Tarkio and lost another game, 37 to 10. Hadley and Biggerstaff scored almost all of the team's points. Graceland College annexed the third consecutive victory from the Griffons, taking a close contest, 24 to 19. The champions of the Kansas conference, Kansas City, Kansas, Junior College, defeated the Giffons in the next game played on a foreign court. The score was 25 to 14. Redmond scored a pair of field goals. The Griffons came out of the losing slump to win over Trenton Junior College, 28 to 16.

CHESTER DIDLO CARLYLE HADLEY

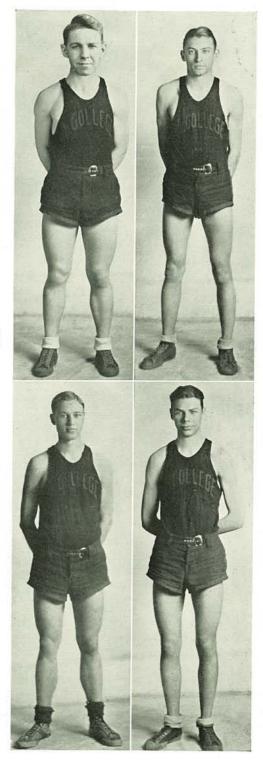

The Kansas City, Kansas, team met the Griffons on the Kansas City court and won, 33 to 29, but it was only after a hard struggle that the Griffons were subdued. The Black and Gold started a rally late in the game that only the gun cut short.

The Trenton Pirates were defeated for the second time of the year, Captain Furse leading the attack with a quartet of field goals. The score of the walk-away was 31 to 13.

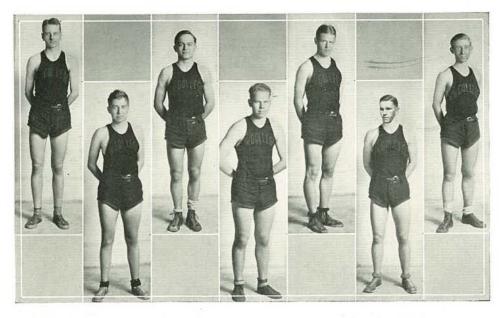

The Wentworth Cadets tallied 44 points to the Griffons' 23 in the game played on the Wentworth floor, and took the contest.

Starting with the Graceland College game, the Griffons swept through the remaining four games without a loss. We defeated the Iowa team for the second time, 30 to 24. Tarkio, the team that ran away from Junior College basketeers in an earlier tilt, was defeated in the Hillyard gymnasium, 33 to 32.

The Griffons led all the way and it was not until the last minute that the four-year school was able to threaten. Biggerstaff, Hadley, Bowman, and Schrenk all played good games and contributed heavily to the scoring totals. The Missouri Wesleyan Owls came from Cameron for the first of a two-game series and went back defeated by the score of 39 to 31. Hadley was the outstanding performer for the Black and Gold quintet, tossing in six field goals and a pair of charity tosses to lead the scorers. The Owls were played on their own court the following Wednesday night and defeated, 35 to 19. The Griffons finished the game with four players, Captain Furse going out of the game in the last few minutes with four personals checked against him. Hadley again led the scorers.

With the regular playing schedule finished, the Griffons entered the tri-state invitation tournament sponsored by Baker University, Baldwin, Kansas. Oklahoma Christian College, two times winner of the Oklahoma Junior College conference, eliminated the Griffons in the first round, 25 to 19. Huff was high point scorer for Junior College, and lacked only one point of tying the high scorer of the game. Out of the championship play, the Griffons went into the consolation round and emerged winner, defeating the Eldorado Junior College five, 23 to 18. Huff was again the star of the game.

Boys' Intramurals

PAUL BOLLIGER Student Manager of Boys' Intramurals

LEONARD HAINES Coach of Boys' Intramurals

The intramural program at Junior College was given more emphasis this year than in preceding years, and the boys responded, most of them competing in several of the events. The program was divided into two parts: Team or group play, and individual play. Playground and basketball were the group contests, and tennis, horseshoes, swimming, track, handball, and free throw were the individual events. Singles and doubles tournaments were held in tennis, horseshoes, and handball, and class teams were chosen from the entrants in the playground ball and basketball events. Points were given for entrance in the contests, and to the winners. The intramural program for this year included the events contested last fall and winter.

Intramural sport gives the boys who want to take part in athletic events of the school that opportunity. Only a select few can play on the varsity basketball team, but all of the boys can take part in the intramural basketball games. The year-round program provided exercise for all, and the events held are included on most of the large university sport calendars.

Women's Athletic Association

MINNIE REITAL Student Manager of Women's Athletic Association

"Why can't the girls of Junior College have sports, too?" was the question asked at the beginning of the year.

"You may if enough girls will take part to make up at least two teams so you can have games," came the response from Dean Haines.

And did the girls take him up on that? Well, I should say they did! They have always had enough teams in each sport to make up a round-robin tournament.

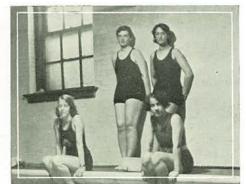

During the second semester the girls taking part in the sports organized and called themselves the "Women's Athletic Association." This organization has charge of the sports and has at its head a president, vice-president, and secretary. This year due to the late formation of the association, there were no officers elected but instead a student manager and an assistant. Each sport also had an individual manager who kept records of points made in the sport of which she was manager. Officers for the coming year will be elected each spring before the close of the school year.

The plan followed is very similar to that of the boys' intramurals. Events are grouped into three classes—major sports, minor sports, and outings. Major sports include those in which teams compete—volleyball, basketball, baseball, and swimming; minor sports include the individual events—horseshoes, tennis, and golf; outings include horseback riding, ice skating, and hiking.

Points are awarded for winning each match or game, for individual or team championships, for class team membership, and for miles hiked or hours ridden or skated. At the end of the school year the two girls having the greatest number of points will be awarded trophies.

These contests have developed a new spirit among J. C. girls—a feeling of comradeship and wholesome competition. It is hoped that the success of girls' sports will assure them of a permanent place on the J. C. calendar,

So This Is Orientation

This yearbook may contain images, language, or other content that could be offensive to modern users. The content may be disturbing and offensive, but should be viewed within the context of that period. The material is being presented as part of a historical record and in no way reflects the values of Missouri Western State University.

Alumni

To begin with, the room was warm—yes, very warm. The soft strains of an eastern orchestra issued from the radio. I had been working intensely. Sheets of paper lay before me with the names of J. C. grads upon them.

I could not have been asleep. I have never been a somnambulist, yet, I was in a strange environment. I was fatigued, so I sat down upon a stump. A white rabbit came hurrying by.

"Oh dear! The duchess will be angry."

I started to my feet in surprise. "A talking rabbit, I know now I am not dreaming. I must investigate this phenomenon."

I followed the rabbit to the seashore, and sat down to watch him. He was talking to a peculiar creature which appeared to be a gryphon of Junior College fame. Gathering upmy courage I strolled toward him. He was not at all surprised to see me.

"You are a gryphon are you not?" I politely asked. "Yes, I am a gryphon. Surely you would recognize me."

A sobbing moan came from behind. I turned around hastily.

"Oh, that is the mock turtle," replied the gry-phon as he did another step in the dance. The mock turtle sighed, and a great tear trickled down his cheek.

"He thinks he is in trouble, but he is not. He is grieving for those who fail in my college. He does not think of my sons and daughters that are reeling, and writhing in a worthwhile manner in life's wonderland."

"Oh! Oh! Oh! They were so promising. Boo! Boo!"

"My dear Mr. Mock Turtle," I exclaimed, "surely, some have been successful?"

"Y-y-yes," he blubbered, "a-a few were—"
"A few," scoffed the gryphon. "Most of them are performing miracles every day."
"Cheer up, friend," I said, "let us hear

"Cheer up, friend," I said, "let us hear about those who have been successful. Have you any record of them?"

"Yes," replied the gryphon," in my vault I keep a record of their activities. I will send the rabbit for them."

"You say you are conducting a college?" I queried.

"Yes, I have a college in St. Joseph, Missouri, where my faculty teaches the various ologies. Some they add to; others they subtract from. They emphasize workology, thinkology, and reasonology. My faculty tries to decrease dumbology, playology, and high schoolology."

"Dear me, how some of the students cling to high schoolology." The mock turtle winked another tear away.

"You taught those courses in the form of lessons?"

"Yes, we did. Each day we lessened their ignorance."

"Are there math courses taught?"

"Yes, ambition, distraction, and inhibition."

"Music is taught?"

"Yes, I offer a splendid course in music.

My students study a song entitled, 'Go Griffons Go!'"

The rabbit clerk arrived carrying a large scroll. He squared his shoulders, cleared his throat, and began: "To those most uninterested I shall reveal the following truths, to wit:"

"Hold on, what are you going to read?" I asked.

"He is going to read the records of the sons and daughters of Gryphon."

"But my dear sir, have they done things worthwhile? Do you have them classified? How many occupations, and professions are represented?"

"All professions are represented. There is not time to have all the names read. Proceed, clerk:"

"Everything in the world," replied the Gryphon, earnestly. "I watch with throbbing heart and bated breath, as my children wend their way through the labyrinth of life's wonderland. When they are unsuccessful I grieve with them; when successful I rejoice with them."

"Oh! Oh!" sighed the Mock Turtle, job it was to "What a was to educate them."

"Yes, it was a big proposition, but it was worth while."

I heard a sound behind me. It was the King and Queen of Hearts, and their army. The Queen frowned at me, and shouted, "Off with his head!"

The executioner started toward me brandishing his ax. I turned to flee, but caught my foot and fell heavily.

I had struck my forehead upon the table. The contents of the ink well was trickling upon the floor.

Junior College, Alma Mater, Though the days are long gone by,

When we learned your noble lessons. Beauty, law, and service high.

Still we love you Junior College, Loyal sons and daughters true; Fill to you life's brimming goblet, Junior College, here's to you!

The Junior College

A VALUABLE COMMUNITY INVESTMENT

"Now here," said the Queen, "it takes all the running you can do to keep in the same place." We, like Alice, live in a wonderland, but ours is the real world of today. In it, both individuals and institutions must go as fast as they can to keep relatively where they are. Increasing thousands of boys and girls are going to college in order to keep pace with the demands of modern life. Colleges, too, must advance in order to keep pace with modern governmental, industrial, and other institutions, the success of which depends upon well educated men and women. Colleges are a social investment, paying high dividends in both material and spiritual wealth. The training they give is increasingly necessary to the very existence and growth of modern social institutions.

Missouri is a pioneer in the junior college movement. St. Joseph is one of the first cities of the state to promote this movement. This fact means that St. Joseph is giving needed educational opportunity to many boys and girls who could not afford to go away to college; is justly decreasing and distributing the expense of educating her youth for greater service to the community and to the state; is enabling her boys and girls in the critical character-forming period of life to live at home, under parental control and supervision, while completing two years of college work. Parents with a vision of the increasing need of education—highly valuable members of any community—desire to make their homes and to rear their children in a city having the foresight to provide opportunity for advanced education.

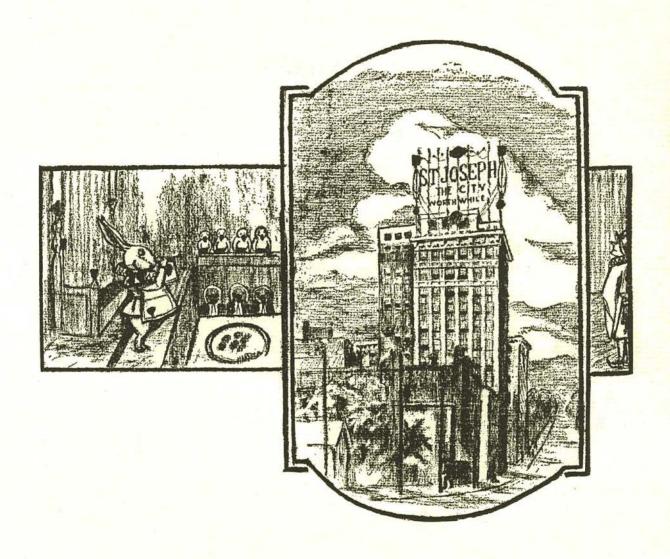

In 1915 the junior colleges of Missouri enrolled only 808 students; last fall they enrolled 4,758 students, 3,024 in the first year's work, 1,546 in the second year's work, and 188 unclassified. The entering classes were nearly twice as large as the second-year classes. What a promise of growth!

"I can't believe that," said Alice. "Can't you?" the Queen said in a pitying tone. "Try again; draw a long breath, and shut your eyes." The progressive citizens of St. Joseph, with eyes open to the facts, can believe and do believe in the new importance of education in our real wonderland. They believe that the maintenance of a junior college is a valuable community investment. As convincing evidence of this fact, stands Junior College of St. Joseph.

"EVER ONWARD"

In the same spirit of "Ever Onward" which you have so generously embodied in your "Griffon" we of the Combe Printing Company wish to extend to you our congratulations for your youthful spirit of Civic Pride.

As the expanse of our city formed the campus of your College so may it be the campus of your "School of Life."

It has indeed been a pleasure to work with you in helping to make this year's "Griffon" a greater success than ever before. We hope to be able again to assist you in making the "Griffon" a book of true remembrance.
