Progress is the key ...

The administration is faced with the unusual problem of attempting to impose enough authority on students to prevent chaos, and yet remain lenient enough in their policies to encourage initiative on the parts of the students and student officers. In addition, the administration must devise curricula, select the faculty, and carry out the policies of the various boards.

In Dedication

Through his untiring service to the citizens of St. Joseph, and because of his dedication to the long dormant dream of a four year college in St. Joseph, Governor Hearnese is making that dream a reality. In keeping with such unselfish effort, we, the yearbook staff of Missouri Western College dedicate the 1968 yearbook to the Honorable Governor Warren E. Hearnese.

Instructors open the door ...

A successful academic program is a consequence of the best combination of its components: instructors, students, the curricula, and the necessary teaching aids. When qualified instructors, aspiring students, a challenging curricula, and adequate facilities combine in the same institution, that institution will have a noteworthy academic program. We of Missouri Western feel that such a combination exists at our college. Students have a variety of fields in which to study, and that study is guided by able instructors and enhanced by good facilities, constantly improving. Missouri Western offers challenging study opportunities in the fields of Business, Physical Education, Science and Engineering, English and Foreign Languages, Psychology, and Fine Arts. The college provides three of the four necessary components of a successful academic program. The student must provide the fourth, the desire to learn, and his accomplishment is limited only by the extent of that desire.

Business Courses Train Future

Some Business problems are humorous to the novice.

Business majors study the organization and operation.

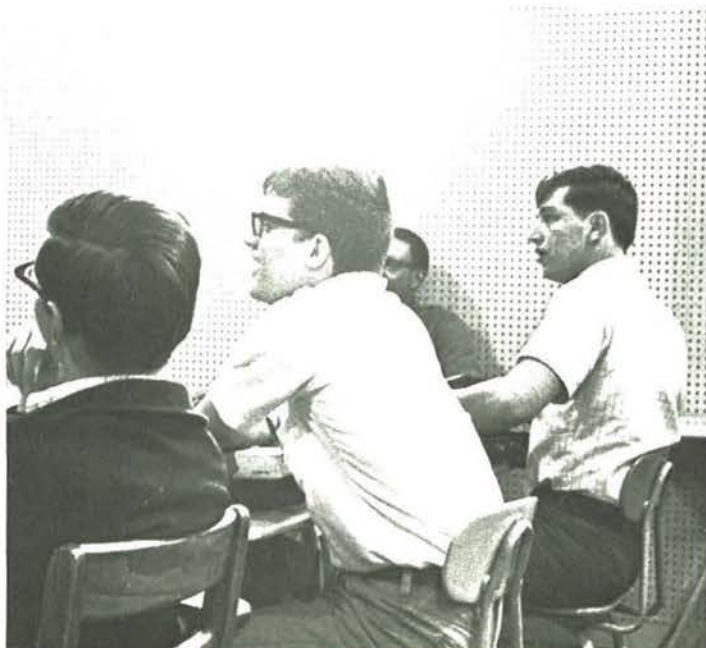

Typing is essential in the fast-paced world.

Capitalists

No area of human activity is more directly responsible for the prosperity of a nation than the field of business. Because of its importance to the nation's welfare, Missouri Western provides extensive training in the various business fields—economics, accounting, business administration, and secretarial training. However, the value of business education to students is not limited to those students who plan careers in the field; a knowledge of the economics of America is necessary for every citizen.

A proper balance is needed for accounting.

Tabular and graphic methods, averages, dispersion, and skewness.

Machines still make mistakes.

Future secretaries learn the rules.

The newest addition to the curricula is Computer Science. Just begun this year, the Computer Science course will be a prerequisite for the first graduates of Missouri Western College after the addition of the final two years. Although the department is in the beginning stages of growth at present, it promises to expand into an important member of Missouri Western's course offerings.

"Now here's how it works if you push this button."

Ron Echterling receives the trophy for the best homecoming float.

Perhaps the most meaningful statement of acclaim that needs to be made for the quality of the Missouri Western Engineering Department is merely to point out the degree of success with which transferring students meet. Students who study under the pre-engineering program at Missouri Western, and then transfer to universities or four-year colleges, find that they have been excellently prepared for the completion of their programs of study.

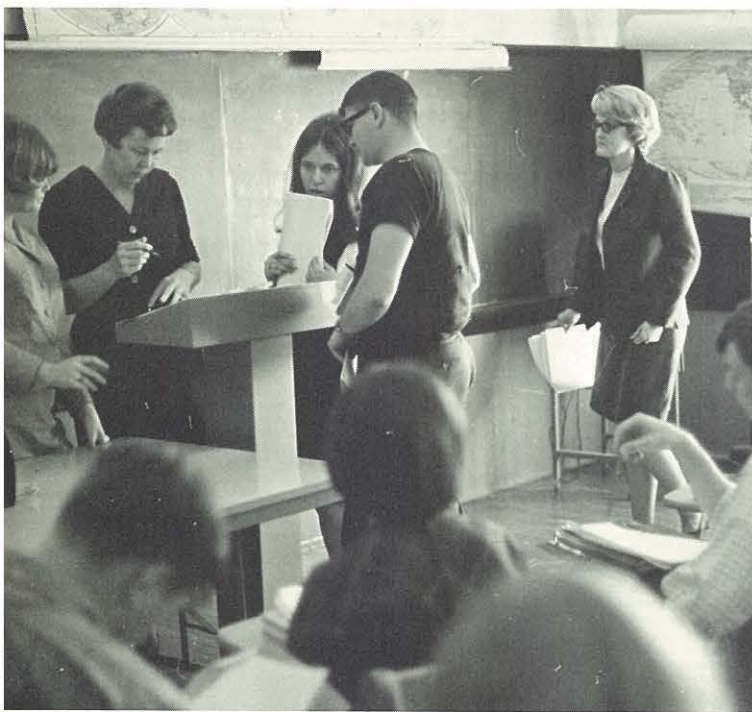

Springing into action in a P.E. swimming class.

Mr. Burri shows them how.

Hygiene is an important class in the department.

“Sports for life” is Coach Burri’s theory for instruction of his physical education classes. Physical education is not designed to stress team sports. Its purpose is to develop individual physical interests. It is hoped that these interests will develop in our later years.

Friendship Hall is the location for co-ed dancing.

Mrs. Greene prepares for a bowling class.

"Keep your eye on the ball and your arm straight," Mr. Burri.

Mrs. Gettys probes the human mind.

A prime cause of altercations, from World Wars to minor arguments, is a lack of understanding among the persons involved. Psychology is the study of why people behave as they do. Perhaps if a greater understanding existed among people, through a knowledge of the motives behind their actions, disagreements would be fewer.

Biology—the secrets of life.

Mr. Force explains the use of the microscope.

Mr. Robbins lectures to biology class.

Mr. Crumley explains laboratory procedures.

It is not necessary to stress the importance of life. From its variety, complexity, mystery, and necessity, we have learned to appreciate it. Man's curiosity has formulated the science of life—biology. Biological science stems into two major branches, botany and zoology. Missouri Western offers a complete program covering the field of biology including such courses as field ecology, comparative vertebrate anatomy and microbiology.

Botany students receive assignment.

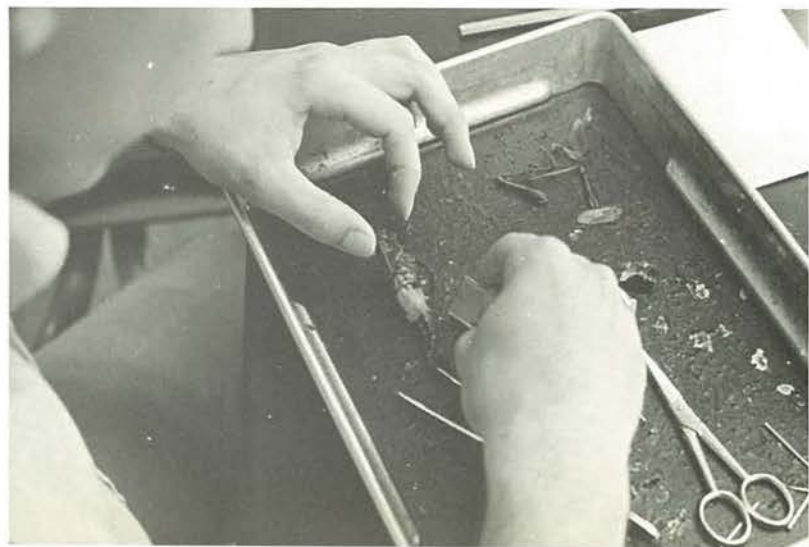

In Zoology, animals are minutely examined.

The microscope—the window to the microcosm.

Dissection is necessary for detailed study.

Nylon, synthetic rubber, medicines, rayon, fuels and plastics are a few of the daily conveniences that have come about through the study of Chemistry. Changes in the molecular structures of substances, the methods to bring about and to control these changes, and the energy absorbed and released during the reactions are the subjects of Chemistry.

Mr. Sandstad points out the artistic technique and style of a beginning artist.

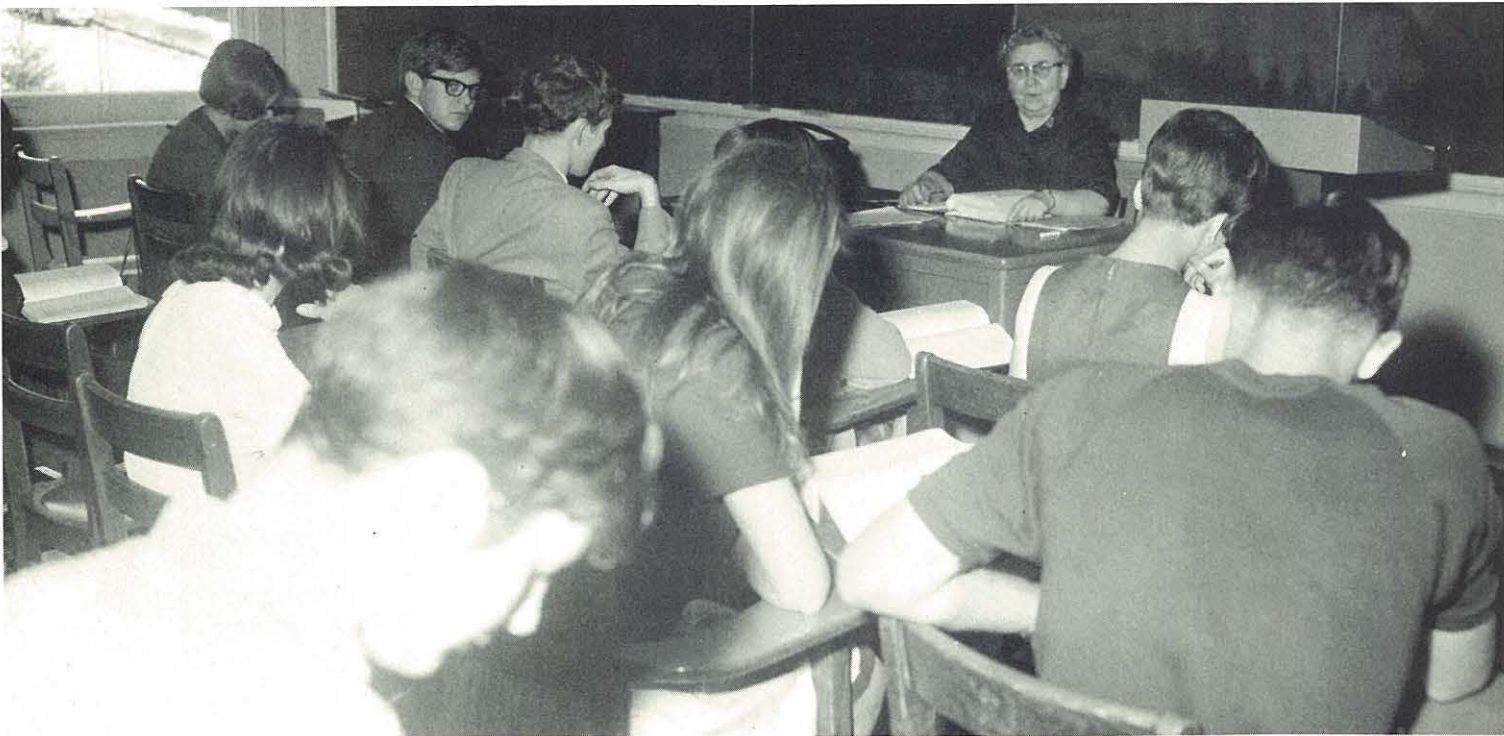

Mr. Miller dramatizes his English composition lecture with the use of an over-head projector.

The Tools for Sharing Thoughts

Miss Doherty's class studies Romeo and Juliet diligently.

Mrs. Ertman explains the basics.

The necessity of a thorough understanding of English is universal: regardless of an individual's occupation he will need to have developed skill in reading and writing letters, reports, and articles. The development of a student's appreciation of novels, short stories, plays, and poetry will provide him with an easily accessible pastime after graduation, and with a more thorough understanding of life. The English Department has a broad enough selection of courses to meet the needs of students majoring in English and of those students who need only a minimum amount of English to fulfill graduation requirements.

Notes are important in all classes, including Mrs. Tomlinson's.

French in the round.

Mary had the wrong tape.

Mrs. Hoffman waits for reaction.

Spanish students profit greatly from participating in the foreign language laboratory.

Modern systems of transportation have removed much of the isolation of the world's nations and have caused persons speaking different languages to come into contact with each other more frequently. Thus, it is becoming increasingly necessary for an individual to be able to converse in or at least to have some knowledge of more than one language. In addition to this increasing necessity to understand languages other than one's native language, a degree of satisfaction is implicit in understanding a foreign language. The Foreign Language Department has a good selection of languages from which students may choose.

Although Spanish lectures are very interesting and educational, one student finds the photographer much more attractive than Mr. Vargas.

Rabbi Meyer points out to his class a way to search for truth through logical reasoning rather than factual observation.

Philosophy is the study of the general causes and principles of things. In this study the art of thinking is developed, and the benefits derived from a subject that exercises one's thinking is obvious. The philosophy course at Missouri Western is one of the most recent and worthwhile additions to the college curricula.

A philosophy class analyzes certain principles of situations and happenings.

Mr. Harden rates a speech.

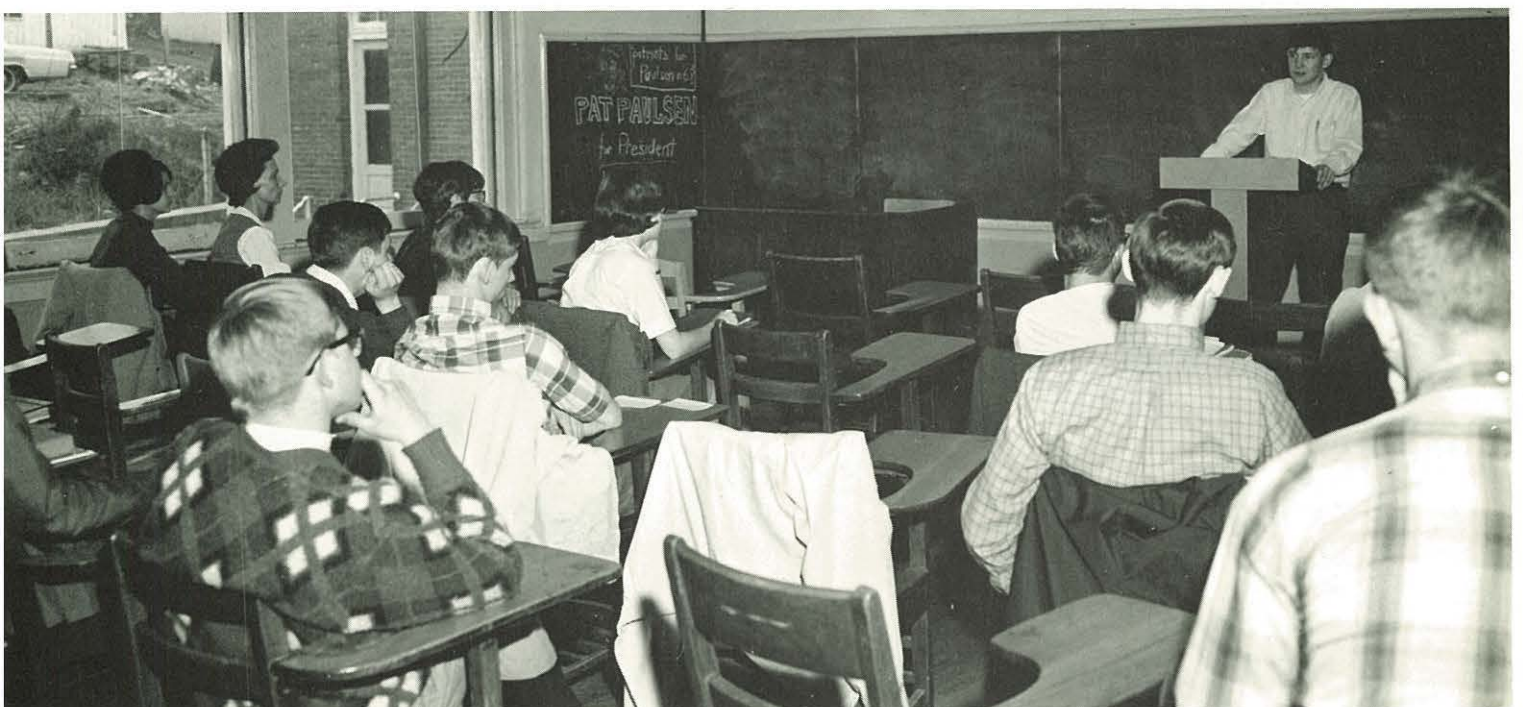

Spotlighting comes from outside to surround Miss Durham.

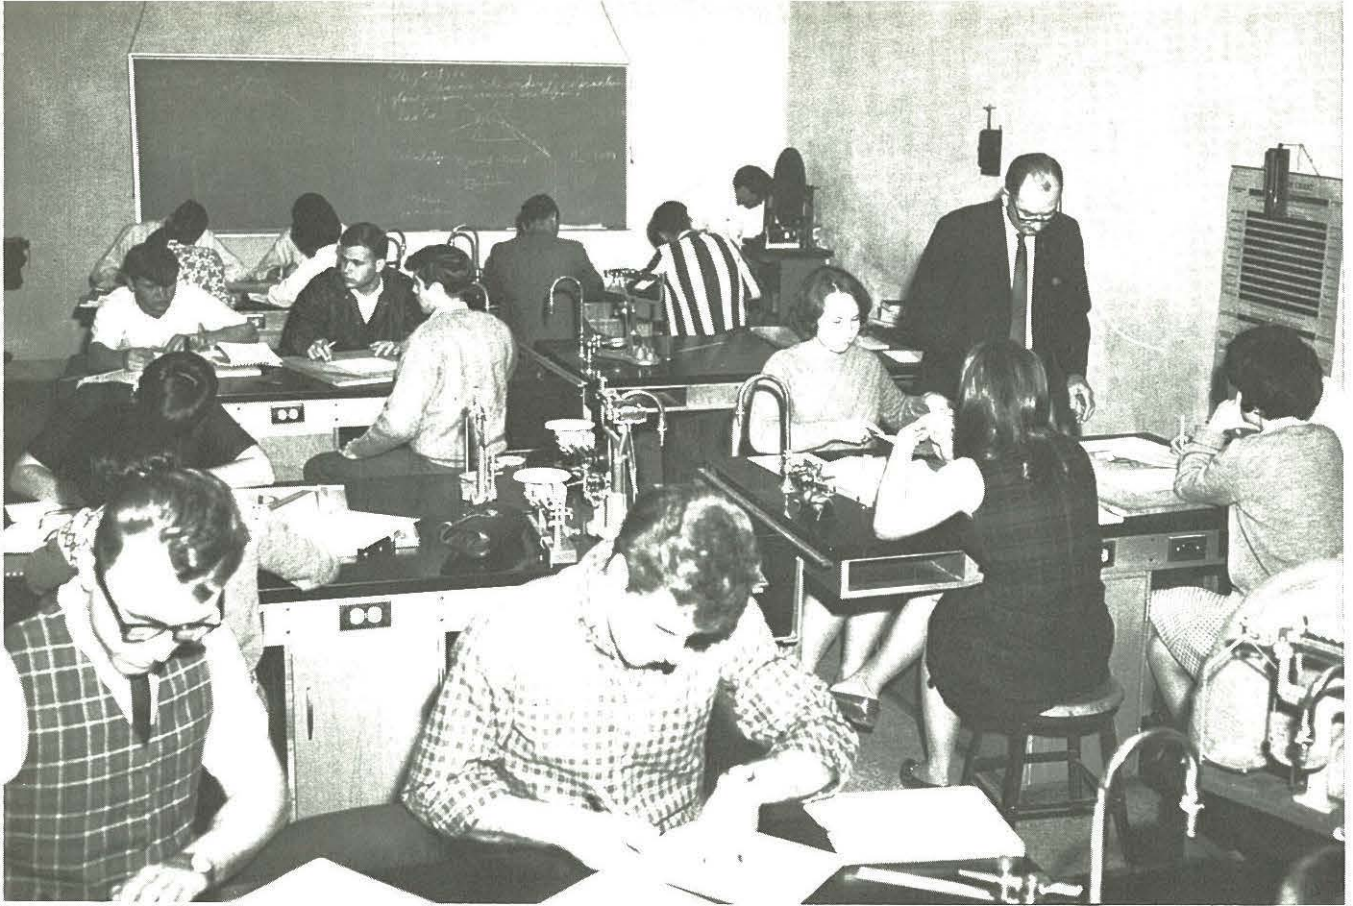

Skill in the art of oral communication is one of the most practical talents one might possess. Short of complete isolation, an individual cannot avoid contact with other individuals, and this daily contact naturally means conversation. The field of dramatics is closely related to speech—speech that reflects daily conversation and yet is elevated to the role of the theatrical medium. A study of speech, combined with the other dramatic arts, are the subjects of the Speech and Drama Department.

Knees shake, teeth chatter, but the poise comes.

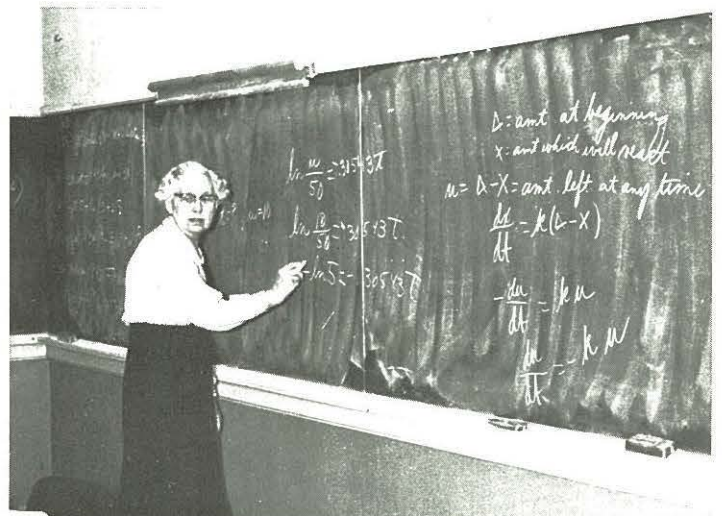

Mr. Agenstein supervises the Physics lab work.

Dave Fry measures angles of light.

Physics is the science of energy and matter, of their relationships and their transformations. This science, and its many specialized branches, is prominent in the development of atomic power, space science, and computer technology. Principles studied in Physics underly nearly all natural phenomena, and the importance of the subject is recognized at Missouri Western.

Miss Watkins calculates at the blackboard.

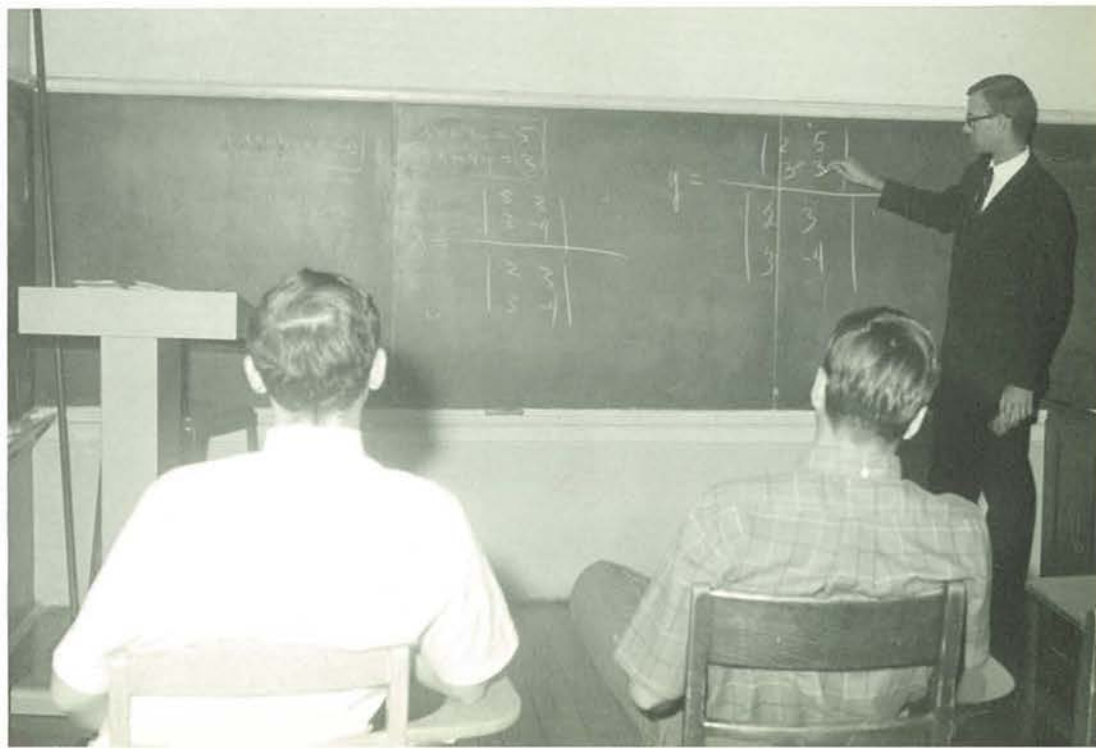

Mr. Houston teaches Algebra and Trigonometry.

Mathematics is the oldest science known; man has endeavored to establish numerical relationships between objects that he has seen since he first began to think. And far from being an outdated study, mathematics is the foundation of the technological world. Therefore, it is appropriate that Missouri Western has a complete course of study in mathematics, from calculus to differential equations to business mathematics, and that it has a well-qualified staff of instructors to train students in this important field.

Mr. Schmitz is framing fractions.

Part-time on campus, Mr. Kimberling taught Algebra.

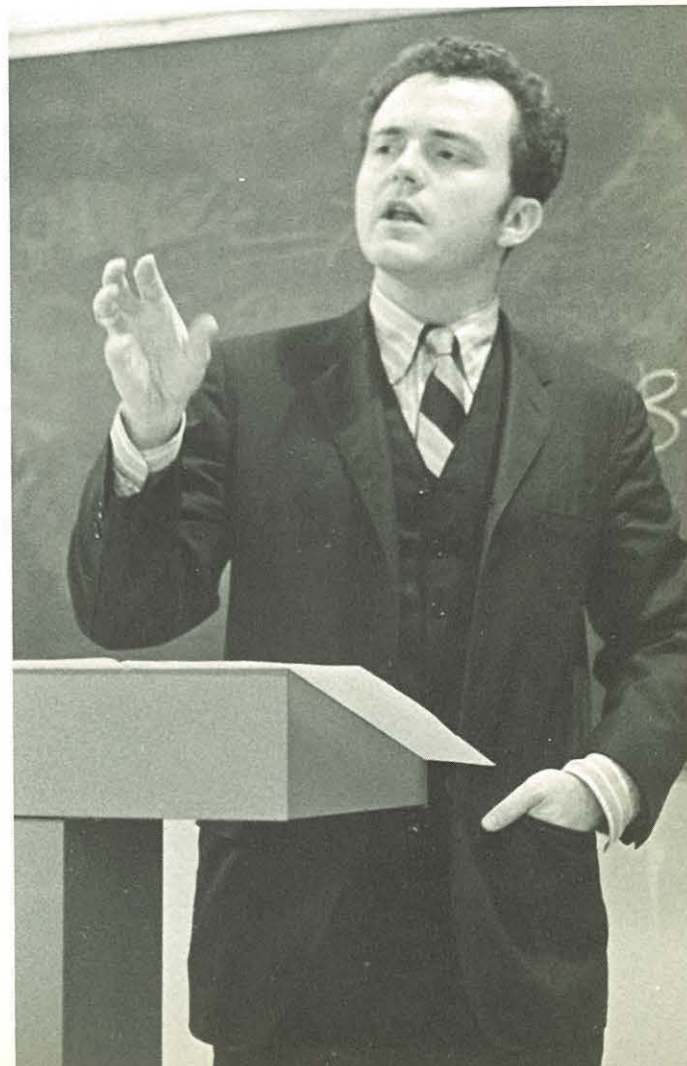

Mike Debenito adds the final touches to his abstracts for American Political Institutions.

The Social Procedures of Civilization

American History Since 1865 explained by Mr. Theisen.

Miss Harvey lists factors which determine social organization and behavior.

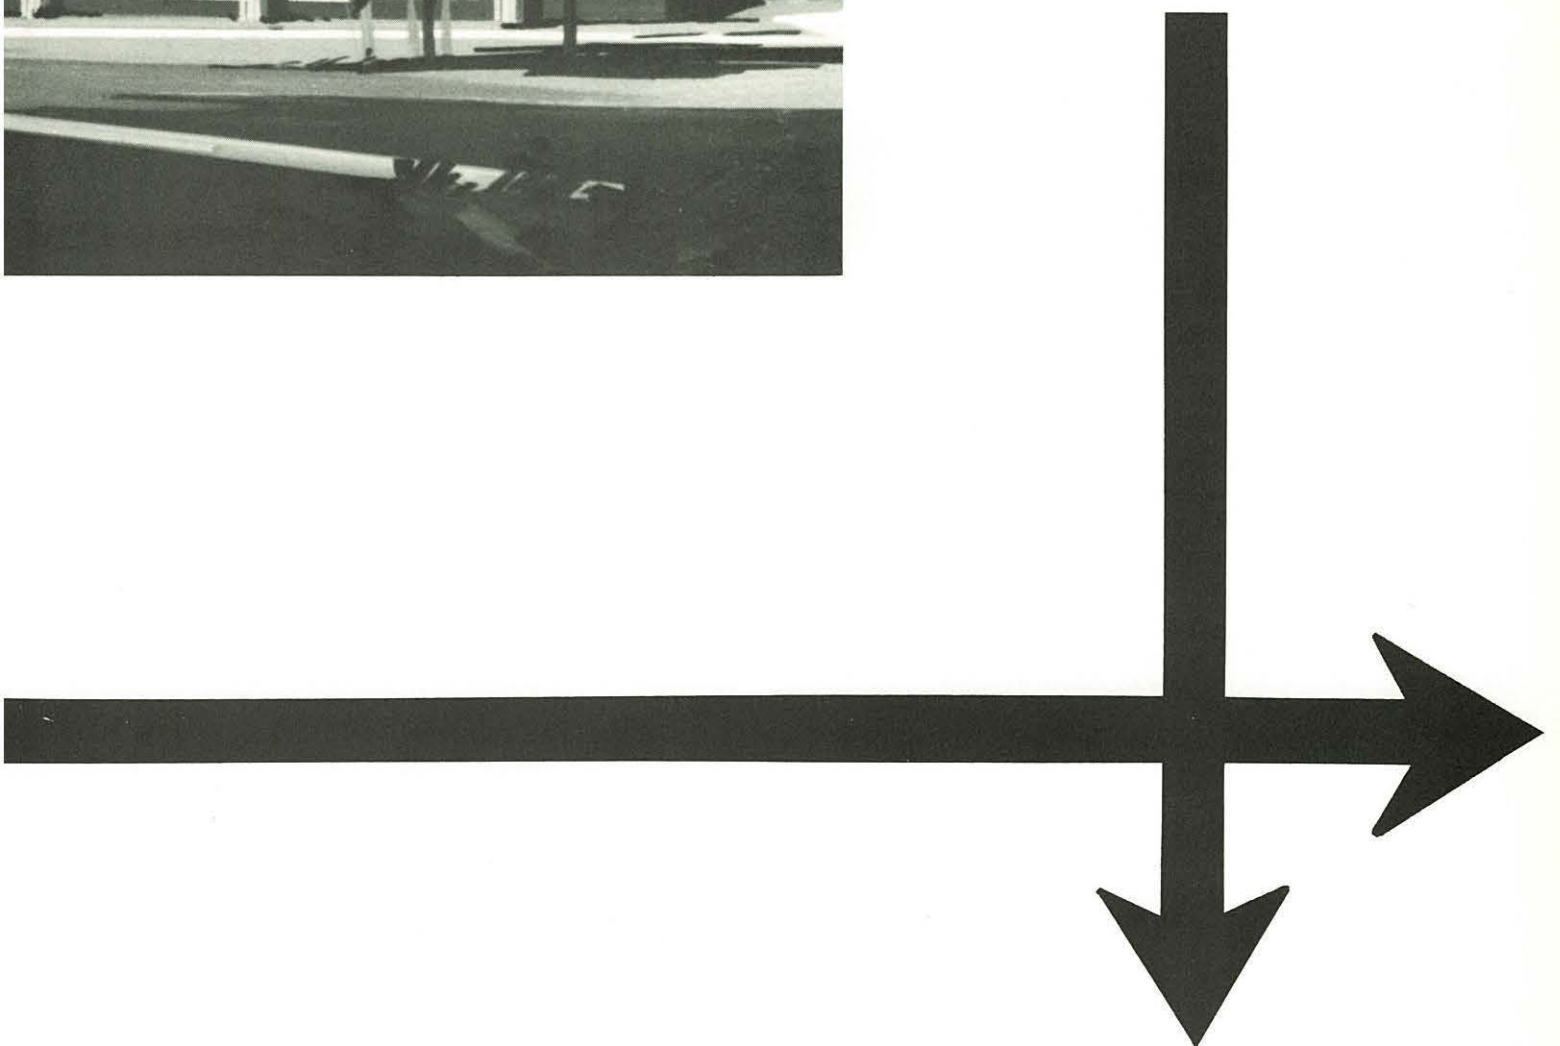

Organizations form the group ...

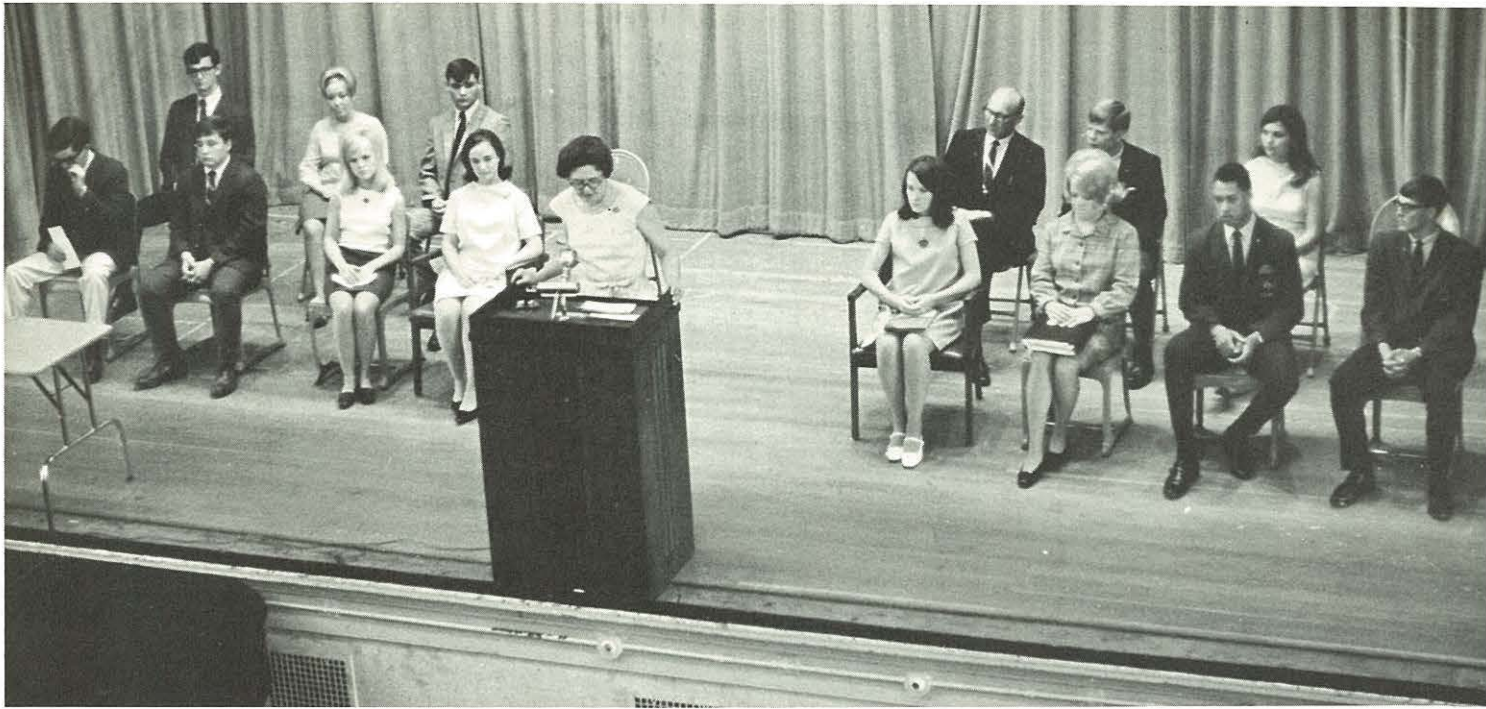

School sponsored organizations are as much a part of college life as the academic program itself. Without the senate, without the yearbook and school newspaper, and without the various clubs that create extra-curricular interests, college life would be a laborious, academic drag. In addition to breaking the drudgery of regular academic work, organizations help the school to run smoothly, and, such organizations as the Prexy Club, create a greater rapport between students and administration.

Miss Phelan, the Senate's faculty sponsor, expresses her thanks to the leaving officers for their cooperation and he hopes for the coming year to the new officers.

Student Senate Provides Efficient Leadership

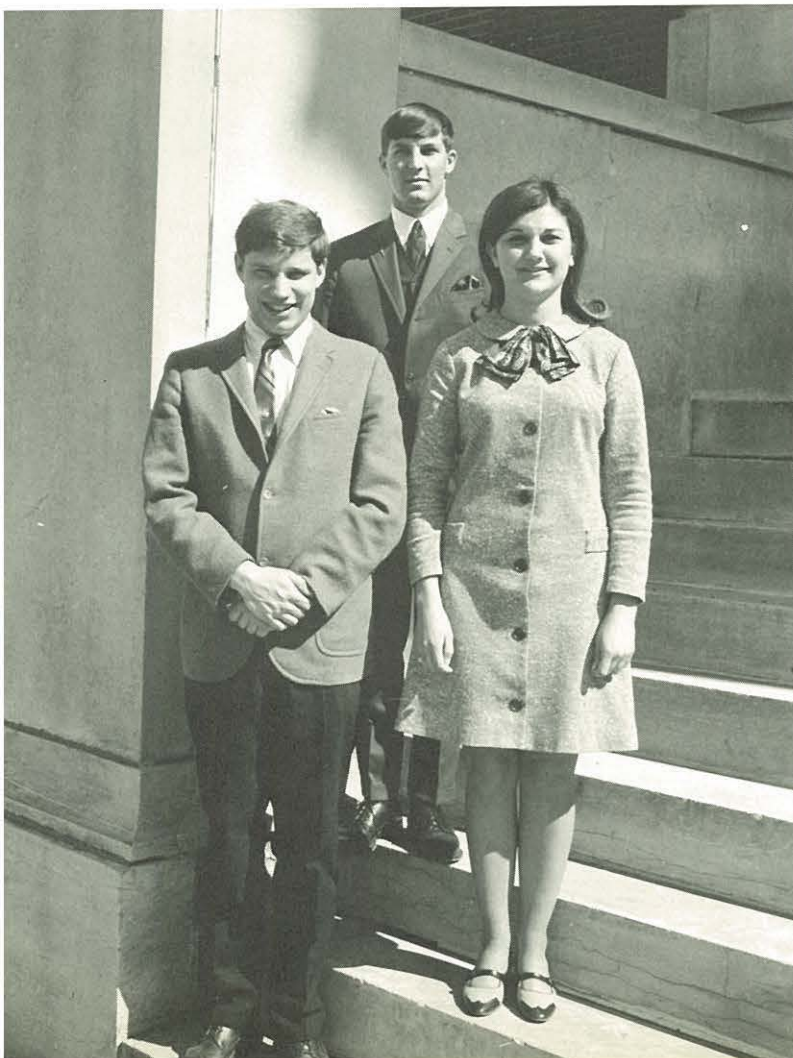

One of the most helpful and profitable services of the Senate is the sponsoring of the book exchange.

Student Body Officers Lead Senate

Linda Baird, Secretary; Marilyn Borkowski, Treasurer; Charles Casteel, Vice-President; and Dave Fry, President, lead the Student Senate throughout the year.

The Cabinet Advises, Supports The Senate

Members of the Cabinet include Dave Slaybaugh, Dave Fry, and Mary Jurkiewicz. Other member, George Hammer, was not present for photograph.

Student Union Board Controls Grotto Functions

The Student Union Board serves as the controlling faction over the Grotto. Also, it provides free movies on weekend evenings in the auditorium for the student body, operates the juke box in the Grotto, and provides for the vending machines in the main building. The Board has done a fine job this year under the direction of Charles Casteel, President, and Mr. John Redmond, faculty advisor.

Mr. Redmond meets with SUB to hear problems and suggestions for solutions.

Some members of the Business Club, including officers, are Janice Martin; Pam De-Shon, secretary; Carroll Thompson, treasurer; Gary Miller; Ron Young, president; and Hilton Sander, vice-president.

Business Prepares Entrepreneurial Ability

The Business Club is an organization of students who aspire to make careers in some field of free enterprise. Guest speakers provide programs that enable students to understand the applications of the theories they have learned in classes. The opportunities that exist in business and the best ways to prepare for success in these fields are, in general, the topics of discussion. Extra-curricular activities that pertain to the academic interests of students have proven to be valuable aids in developing the proficiency of the students in their respective fields.

Mr. Leland Gore, representing the Park Bank, familiarizes Business Club members with the values of a banking career.

Prexy Club Unites Student Body and Administration

Dr. Looney, Ron Echterling, Jules Richa, Kenny McWilliams, Roger Swafford, George Hammer, Jeannie

Kelley, and not pictured Dave Fry and Ron Fleckal, comprise the Prexy Club.

The Activities Planning Committee chooses and plans all convocations for the coming year. They attempt to devise an agenda that will appeal to students and faculty and one which will add to the academic program of the college. In addition to this, the committee has the responsibility of planning the commencement exercises for this year's graduating students. The committee was also prominent in the drive for the annexation into the city of the land for the new college.

The Prexy Club is a creation of Dr. Looney designed to establish a closer rapport between the student body and the administration. The student section of the club consists of the presidents of organizations which are recognized by the school. This group meets once each month with Dr. Looney to discuss anything of importance to the college or to the student body. One such topic was the problem of card playing in the Grotto.

Mr. Harden points out some of the requisites for Delta Psi Omega.

Student Actors Produce Two Plays

Rich Howard and Paula Block are half the cast in the Glass Menagerie.

The dramatics department, under the direction of Miss Lu Durham and Mr. Vernon Hardin, produced two major plays this year for the enjoyment of the student body and the St. Joseph community. "Visit to a Small Planet," a comedy, was presented during the first semester. It was directed by Mr. Vernon Harden. "The Glass Menagerie" was directed by Miss Lu Durham and was given during the second semester.

Professional performances by Mike Dandliker and Alexandra Santa Cruz.

Activities provide the outlet . . .

The activities that occur during the course of the school year form the skeleton of college social life. Basketball games, the homecoming parade and dance, convocations, and the numerous other activities that go on, generate a great deal of spirit. Such activities also help to form an image of the college, an image of vitality and growth. Without a high degree of school spirit and without a desirable image, no degree of success with which the academic programs of the college can meet will define a good institution.

Pam Pickrel, sophomore, and Theresa Trullinger, freshman, show their elation at being chosen as members of Mace.

For the first semester of the 1967-1968 year, the Missouri Western student body enjoyed sandwiches and other items prepared by Mrs. Clarence Radke, Mrs. Charles Petitt, Mrs. Oscar Powell, and Mrs. Herman Lau. Because these ladies could not work late in the afternoon or at night, food was unavailable to students at these hours and the Grotto was closed at three o'clock. The administration, to obtain more usage from our student union, deemed it necessary to install a variety of vending machines to provide students with food at all hours. The Student Union Board and the Student Senate urge students using the Grotto to help it to continue to be a place worthwhile for Missouri Western students.

Automation invades the Grotto.

Grotto Takes on New Face

Students accustom themselves to gleaming glass rather than smiling faces.

Books are the basis of the library and cataloging makes them easy to find.

Library Grows with the New School

The library, under the direction of Mrs. Helen Wigersma, grew like a hungry animal devouring a section of the main hall and several adjoining rooms. Though our library now lacks many of the more modern library equipment and study space, the new Warren E. Hearnnes Learning Resource Center now under construction at the new campus site, will be one of the most modern and fully equipped in the country.

Many students spend more time in the library than in class sessions.

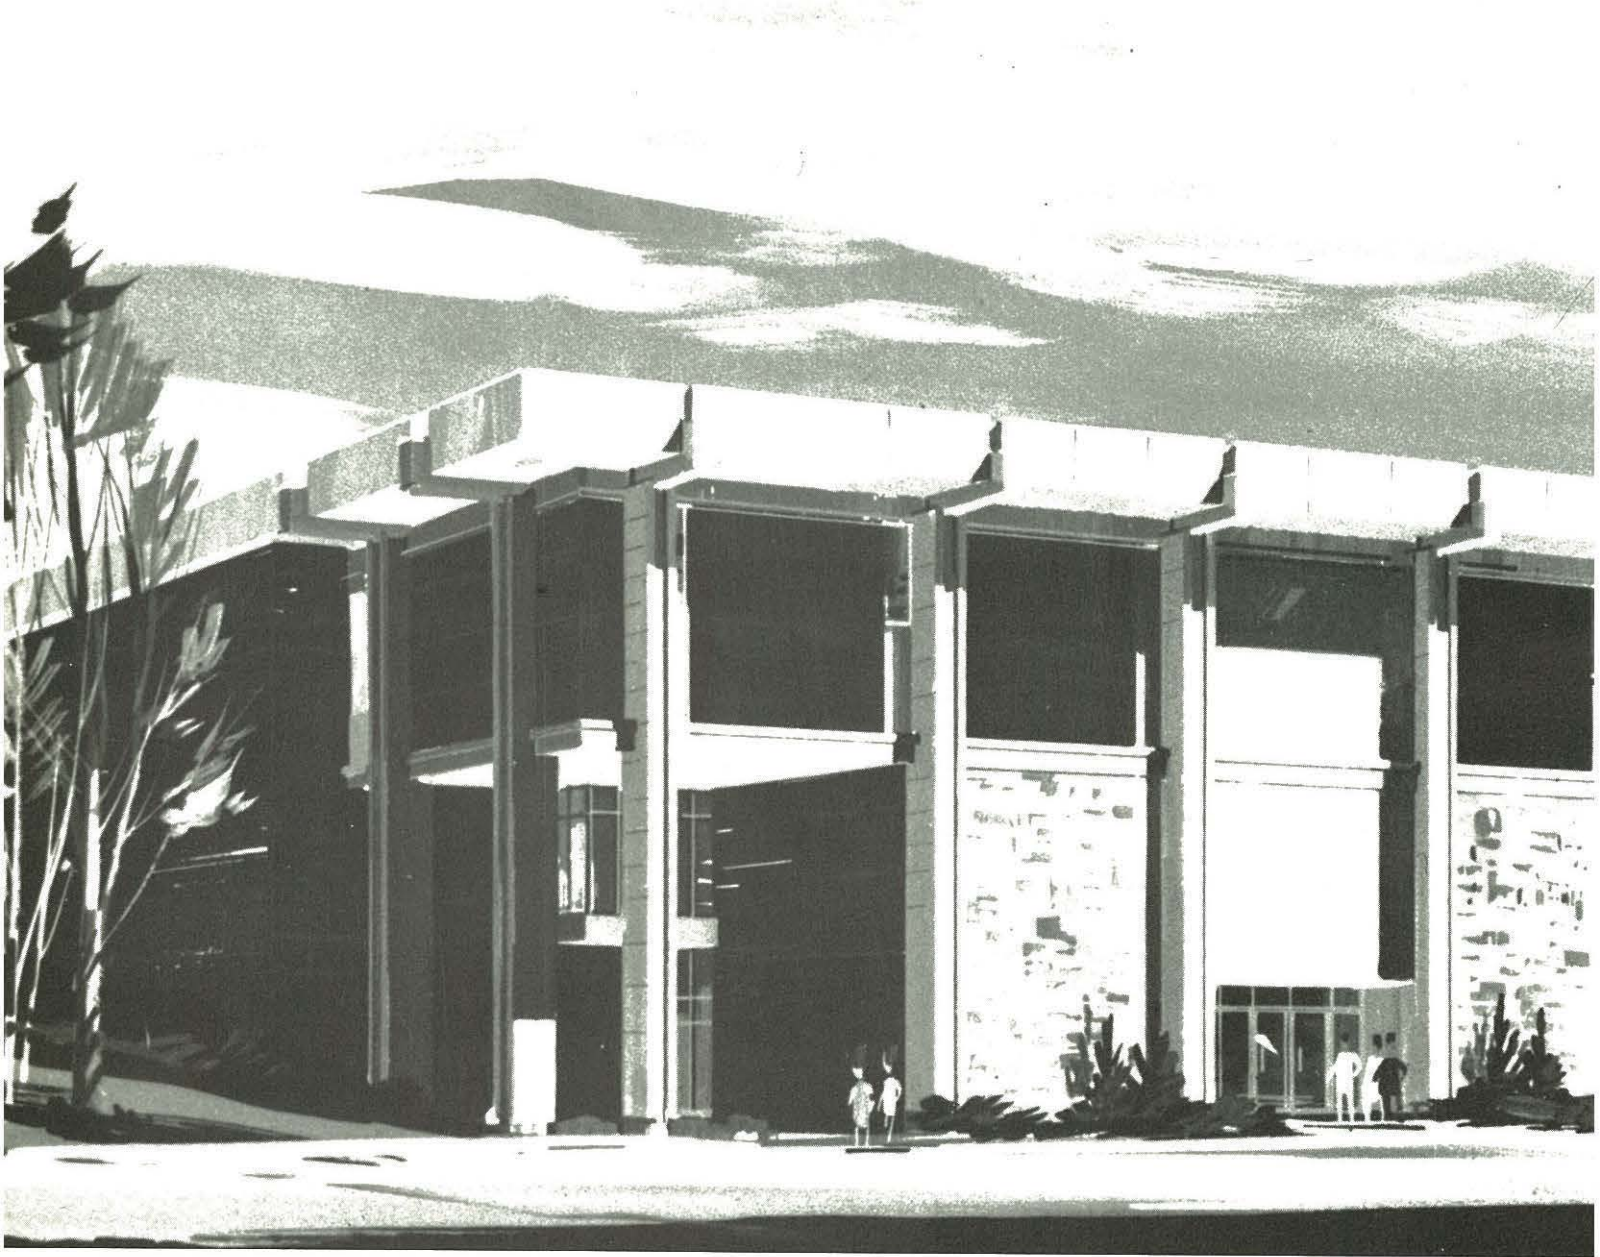

Mrs. Helen Wigersma, head librarian, holds a B.A. from the University of Missouri and a M.S.L.S. from the University of Illinois.

Magazines fill the gap between current events and history books.

Students are the reason ...

Of all the dozens of groups throughout the student body, the largest, most inclusive divisions are the classes. Although the size of an entire class may seem to be such that all the individuality of students is lost, we feel that Missouri Western is successful in retaining a great part of each student's identity. Personal attention is a major philosophy of Missouri Western and will continue to be with the addition of junior and senior classes in the next few years.

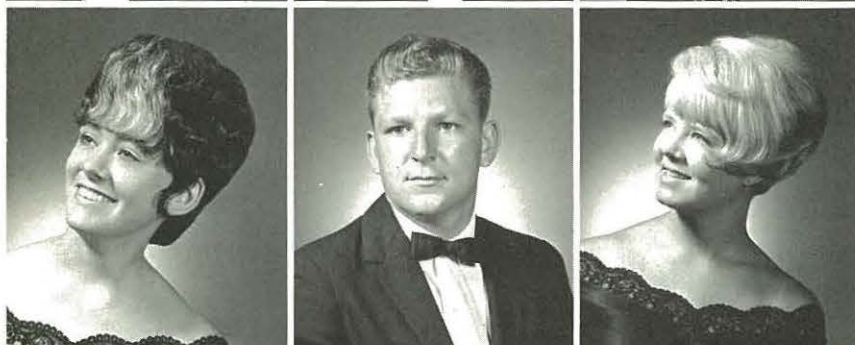

An increased capacity makes the library a much greater asset to the students of Missouri Western.

Graduation is the exit ...

For some, the end has arrived. They finished their work at Missouri Western and left for the last time mindful of their beginning of higher education and bases established here will be used throughout life.

For others, the red brick building continues to hold a future . . . a future short-lived for the building, but long in education for the student. Dreams of the new campus take shape and plans for the four-year degree at home are nearing a reality. Long live Missouri Western!

Linda Felt receives one of her many honors as the top student at Missouri Western.

Editors Page

The past year has been a very important year for both Missouri Western College and the Griffon year-book staff. MWC, as a four year college, is no longer a dream. Bids have been taken for many of the new buildings and others are presently under construction. If the current pace continues, the freshman class of 1968 will be the first graduating class at the new college.

The Griffon has also grown considerably this year. We felt secure that by adding 24 pages we could fully cover all activities and organizations, but the staff found itself constantly changing and revising as new activities were added. Even with many pages added, some functions could not be fitted in. We are sorry for this because we tried to include a complete picture of college life at MWC. Also added to the 1968 Griffon were two color pages, more copy, and a newer approach towards the photography.

I would like to thank the staff members, Daryl Canterbury, layout editor; Bob Shier, photography editor; Steve Griffith, copy editor; Tom Stufflebean, Mary Joice, and Betty Muench for their able assistance. Also Ken Rosenauer for his photographic contribution, and Mr. Cyrill R. Bray for his encouragement and the use of his equipment. And special thanks to our faculty advisor, Frank Smith who began the year knowing nothing about yearbooks and ended teaching all of us. The staff would also like to thank the student body, faculty, and administration for their cooperation.

Although work on the Griffon was, at times, demanding, I am sure all of the staff enjoyed making it. We hope you, the reader, will be pleased with our labors.

Ron Fleckal
